

FIRST AID CODE OF PRACTICE

APPROVED TRAINING PROVIDERS/REGISTERED TRAINING ORGANISATIONS (RTOs)

To help workplaces get ready for the new Approved Code of Practice for First Aid in the Workplace (the new Code) on 10 December 2010, SafeWork SA has approved a range of interim transitional arrangements that will apply to first aid training.

This information sheet provides a list of approved training providers and approved RTOs who are known to have trainers based in South Australia.

Important Note

The attached list is based on information provided by first aid training providers and verified through the National Training Information Service (NTIS) website on 15 December 2009.

Approval to deliver courses is for a limited period, approval can lapse or, in rare cases, be revoked. It is therefore recommended that you confirm with the training provider that their approval is still current. In the case of RTOs listed, you can also check the NTIS website www.ntis.gov.au for more up-to-date information on their status.

Details of other interstate-based RTOs who may be able to provide first aid training courses in South Australia can also be found via the NTIS website.

Should your RTO be on the list?

Any RTO that is not on the attached list but meets the relevant criteria (i.e. have scope of registration for the relevant competencies and employs people living in South Australia to deliver the training) can have their details added by emailing the relevant information through to the SafeWork SA Policy and Strategy Unit – email help@safework.sa.gov.au
